DOUGLASS ON LINCOLN

THE COLORED MAN'S ESTIMATE OF THE GREAT EMANCIPATOR

In his oration at the unveiling of the colored men's statue of Abraham Lincoln in Washington on the 11th anniversary of his assassination, Frederick Douglass said:

[illegible]

Fellow citizens, ours is no new born zeal and devotion—merely a thing of the hour. The name of Abraham Lincoln was near and dear to our hearts in the darkest and most perilous hours of the republic. We were no more ashamed of him when shrouded in clouds of darkness, of doubt and defeat, than when we saw him crowned with victory, honor and glory. Our faith in him was often taxed and strained to the uttermost, but it never failed. When he tarried long in the mountain, when he strangely told us that we were the cause of the war, when he still more strangely told us to leave the land in which we were born, when he refused to employ our arms in defence of the Union, when, after accepting our services as colored soldiers, he refused to retaliate when we were murdered as colored prisoners, when he told us he would save the Union if he could with slavery, when he revoked the proclamation of emancipation of Gen. Fremont, when he refused to remove the Commander of the Army of the Potomac, who was more zealous in his efforts to protect slavery than to suppress rebellion,—when we saw all this, and more, we were at times stunned, grieved and greatly bewildered, but our hearts believed while they ached and bled. Nor was this, even at that time, a blind and unreasonable superstition. Despite the mist and haze that surrounded him, despite the tumult, the hurry, and confusion of the hour, we were able to take a comprehensive view of Abraham Lincoln, and to make reasonable allowance for the circumstances of his position. We saw him, measured him, and estimated him, not by stray utterances to injudicious and tedious delegations, who often tried his patience; not by isolated facts torn from their connection; not by any partial and imperfect glimpses caught at inopportune moments, but by a broad survey, in the light of the stern logic of great events—and in view of that Divinity which shapes our ends rough-hew them as we will we came to the conclusion that the hour and the man of our redemption had met in the person of Abraham Lincoln. It mattered little to us what language he might employ upon special occasions, it mattered little to us, when we fully knew him, whether he was swift or slow in his movements, it was enough for us that Abraham Lincoln was at the head of a great movement, and was in living and earnest sympathy with that movement, which, in the nature of things, must go on till slavery should be utterly and forever abolished in the United States. When, therefore, it shall be asked what we have to do with the memory of Abraham Lincoln or what Abraham Lincoln had to do with us? the answer is ready, full, and complete. Though he loved Cæsar less than Rome, though the Union was more to him than our freedom or our future, under his wise and beneficent rule we saw ourselves gradually lifted from depths of slavery to the heights of liberty and manhood; under his wise and beneficent rule, and by measures approved and vigorously pressed by him, we saw that the handwriting of ages, in the form of prejudice and proscription was rapidly fading away from the face of our whole country; under his rule and in due time, about as soon after all as the country could tolerate the strange spectacle, we saw our brave sons and brothers laying off the rags of bondage, and being clothed all over in the blue uniform of the soldiers of the United States, under his rule we saw two hundred thousand of our dark and dusky people responding to the call of Abraham Lincoln, and with muskets on their shoulders and eagles on their buttons, timing their high footsteps to liberty and Union under the national flag, under his rule we saw the independence of the black Republic of Hayti, the special object of slaveholding aversion and horror, fully recognized, and her Minister, a colored gentleman, duly received here in the City of Washington, under his rule we saw the internal slave trade which so long disgraced the nation abolished, and slavery abolished in the District of Columbia, under his rule we saw for the first time the law enforced against the foreign slave trade and the first slave-trader hanged like any other pirate or murderer, under his rule and inspiration we saw the Confederate States, based upon the idea that our race must be slaves, and slaves forever, battered to pieces and scattered to the four winds, under his rule and in the fullness of time we saw Abraham Lincoln after giving the slaveholders three months of grace in which to save their hateful slave system penning the immortal paper, which though special in its language, was general in its principles and effect, making slavery forever impossible in the United States. Though we waited long we saw all this and more.

BELKNAP'S REJOINDER

HIS COUNSEL'S ANSWER TO THE HOUSE REPLICATIONS

Just before the office of the Secretary of the Senate was closed Monday afternoon the counsel for William W. Belknap filed with Secretary Gorham General Belknap's rejoinder to the replications of the house of representatives. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] ought not by anything in the replication alleged to [illegible] against him, said Belknap [illegible] he says, although it is [illegible] his position as Secretary of War on March 2, 1876, at 10.20 in the forenoon by a resignation in writing [illegible] addressed to the President and the President then and there accepted said resignation in writing, nevertheless it is not true as alleged in the replication that said Belknap resigned his said position with intent to evade any proceedings of said house of representatives by impeachment, but on the contrary the truth is, avers the rejoinder, that a standing committee of said house, known as the committee on expenditures of the War department, without any authority from or direction of said house of representatives to examine into or investigate in regard to matters and things set forth in the said articles as the official misconduct of him [Belknap] had examined one Marsh in the matter of a statement which, if true, would not support the articles of impeachment against him [Belknap], but said statement was of such character in respect to other persons some of whom had been and one of whom was so nearly connected with him [Belknap] by domestic ties as to greatly afflict him [Belknap] and make him willing to secure the suppression of so much of said statement as affected such other persons at any cost to himself—therefore he [Belknap] proposed to said committee that if the said committee would suppress that part of said statement which related to said other persons, he, the said Belknap, though contrary to the truth, would admit the receipt by him, said Belknap, of all the money stated by said Marsh to have been received by him from one Evans mentioned in said statement and paid over to Marsh by any other person or persons, but the committee declined to accede to the proposition, and the Hon. Hiester Clymer, chairman of said committee, then declared to said Belknap that he [Clymer] should move in the house of representatives, on the statement of said Marsh, for the impeachment of him [Belknap] unless said Belknap should resign his position as Secretary of War before noon of the next day, March 2, 1876; and said Belknap, regarding this statement of said Clymer, chairman as before said, as an intimation that he [Belknap] could by thus resigning avoid affliction, inseparable from a protracted trial, in a form which would attract the greatest degree of public attention and the humiliation of availing himself of defence, disclosed in said statement itself, which would cast blame on said other person,—he yielded to the suggestion made by said Clymer, believing the same was made in good faith, and that he [Belknap] would by resigning his position as Secretary of War secure speedy dismissal of the said statement from the public mind, which said statement, though it involved no criminality on his part, was deeply painful to his feelings, and did resign his said position as Secretary of War, and caused said committee to be notified of his resignation and of the acceptance thereof by the President of the United States, all of which was in pursuance and in consequence of said suggestion so made by Clymer, and therefore said committee declared they had no further duty to perform in the premises; and he [Belknap] submits that while said house of representatives claims that said Clymer was acting on its behalf [illegible] said house might in honor and law to be estopped to deny that said Clymer was also acting on behalf of said house in suggesting the resignation of said Belknap as aforesaid, and ought not to be heard to complain of a resignation thus induced—and this he [Belknap] is ready to verify wherefore he prays judgment if said house of representatives ought to have or maintain the impeachment against him.

W. W. BELKNAP.

OUR CANDIDATE.

FOR PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

HON. JAMES G. BLAINE.

Subject to the decision of the 16th (and last) National Convention

Republican National Convention, 1876.

The next Union Republican National Convention for the nomination of candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States will be held in the City of CINCINNATI, on WEDNESDAY, THE FOURTEENTH DAY OF JUNE, 1876, at 12 o'clock noon, at which each of the several States and Territories is entitled to twice the number of its Senators and Representatives in Congress, and of two delegates from each organized Territory and the District of Columbia.

In calling the conventions for the election of delegates, the committees of the several States are recommended to invite all such citizens as favor, and all other voters, will not regard it part politics, but as a chief occasion for uniting all parties against one, who are opposed to executing the laws of the States, and to promote the fully feeling and permanent harmony throughout the country by nominating and enforcing all the constitutional rights of every citizen, and by securing to him the full value for exercise of the right of choice without intimidation and without fraud, who are in favor of Union by peaceful means, and who are in favor of honest, economical and efficient administration of the Government; who favor such an administration of the Government as will foster all the industrial pursuits of the country, and who favor the establishment of such principles and such policy in the administration of the Government as will secure the full enjoyment of the rights of person and property in every part of the land, and who favor the full and free exercise of the right of suffrage by all citizens entitled to vote, without molestation and without fraud, who are in favor of Union by peaceful means, and who are in favor of such legislation and such administration as will secure to all the equal protection in the enjoyment of all their rights, who favor the National faith pledged for the redemption of the public debt, who favor honest and economical government, who favor the immediate resumption of specie payments, who favor such a policy as will encourage the development of the resources of America to the utmost, and who favor the admission of all the States entitled to representation upon terms of equality in all the rights of the States.

In making up the basis of representation in the Convention, we believe that it will be the wisest course, and the one most in accordance with the principles of the party, to adopt the same ratio of representation which was adopted by the Convention of 1872, and accordingly we recommend that each State be entitled to as many delegates at large as it has Senators, and one delegate for every two Representatives, and for every fraction of a majority of one hundred votes cast for the Republican candidate for Governor in 1872, or for the Republican candidate for Presidential Elector in 1872, in cases where no vote was cast for Governor, and that each Territory and the District of Columbia be entitled to two delegates at large and one additional delegate for every 5,000 votes cast for the Republican candidate for Delegate in Congress in 1872.

We recommend that the Convention be called to assemble at 12 o'clock noon, on the second Tuesday of June, 1876, at such place as may be designated by the National Committee.

E. D. MORGAN, Chairman,
WM. E. CHANDLER, Secretary,
Republican National Committee.

Washington, January 15, 1876.

FRANK TESTIMONY OF AN OPPONENT.

From references frequently made in the news columns our readers are well aware that the Portland Advertiser has for years been strongly and even bitterly opposed to Mr. Blaine in the politics of this State, and that its expressions are not likely to be biased by any undue partiality in favor of its candidacy for the Presidency, therefore, of the base charges against him and his complete vindication, is entitled to special notice, affording as conspicuous and honorable contrast to the many foul defamations exhibited by certain partisan sheets. The Advertiser plainly states certain strong political objections which it entertains for Mr. Blaine, but it refuses to countenance the aspersions upon his integrity and frankly disposes of the recent scandal as follows:

The story about Mr. Blaine and the Union Pacific Railroad, as first published, alleged that he had received $64,000 for $75,000 in worthless bonds of the Little Rock and Fort Smith Railroad. Mr. E. H. Rollins, treasurer of the Union Pacific Company was named as authority for the statement, but promptly disavowed it, saying he was sure that no money had ever been paid by the Company "in any way, or to any person" in which Mr. Blaine was interested in any manner whatever. Then it was said the payment had been ostensibly made to Morton, Bliss & Co., but for Mr. Blaine's benefit, but they immediately declared that nothing had been paid by them in any form or at any time, to any person or to any corporation in which he was known, believed or supposed to have any interest. Then Col. Tom Scott, President of the Union Pacific Company, was said to have received the bonds from Mr. Blaine, advancing the money, which finally came out of the Company's treasury, and now Col. Scott says the bonds "were not purchased or received from Mr. Blaine directly or indirectly," and not one dollar of the avails went to him, "or to any person for him, or for his benefit in any form." No denial could be more explicit, and all that remains is for Mr. Harrison to explain the circumstances for which he has allowed himself to become responsible, and for Mr. Scott or Mr. Rollins to say who did get $64,000 cash in 1871 for $75,000 in Little Rock and Fort Smith bonds.

Mr. Blaine's statement of his investment in the Little Rock bonds appears to be entirely true and truthful and is not only consistent with all the facts so far known, but is corroborated by the circumstances of the case. Mr. Blaine in 1867 bought some mining property in Pennsylvania, which was sold under the hammer and which he happened to know was very valuable. He purchased $64,000 for this property, which is now worth half a million and has for a number of years paid him an annual income of $30,000. This transaction is well known in Maine. There were gentlemen here who were invited to join in the purchase, but declined and have since regretted their decision. It is known where and how he obtained the money to pay for a purchase, which was then beyond his own means, and it is not surprising to any body who knows these circumstances that eight or ten years afterward Mr. Blaine should have had money to invest, or that his judgment concerning an investment should have been regarded with much respect by his neighbors.

In 1862, Mr. Blaine was elected to the 38th Congress. In 1860 he was elected Speaker. In six years he had attained the highest position in the gift of the House of Representatives. He was still young, he was ambitious, he knew well and had often said, that a public man who has anything to conceal is a fool, for nothing can be concealed from the jealous scrutiny of the host of enemies who pursue the footsteps of a successful politician. To complete the statement, it must be remembered that he was already wealthy, and had no temptation to mortgage his future.

It was at this time that Mr. Blaine became interested in the Little Rock securities. Two explanations of his ownership of these securities are offered. One is the plain and natural statement that having money to invest, and emboldened by the success of other speculations, Mr. Blaine, like other people, bought some stocks which turned out badly, and not only carried his own load but assumed the burdens of some of his constituents, who had invested their money on his too sanguine representations. The other is the violent assumption, that without any pressure of need, and with a clear and vivid apprehension of the folly he was committing, Mr. Blaine deliberately sold his birthright of preferment for a lot of devil's money which turned to waste paper in his pockets.

Of these two explanations we are bound to say that the first is reasonable and credible, while the second is extravagant and preposterous.

The Argus squirms and twists fearfully over Mr. Blaine's vindication which it refused to publish, but is compelled to admit that his denial "appears to cover the whole ground and the evidence in support of his statement is to the same effect." It reluctantly concludes that "it will be received by the unprejudiced public as satisfactory until something further turns up," and proceeds to rake up the old slanders which were so completely squelched and Job Stevenson along with them. Poor, senile Argus.

The Boston Globe has an entirely untruthful and intensely mean editorial concerning Mr. Blaine on being especially active in canvassing in his own behalf. As that paper declares that "Bristow is a platform in himself," we may fairly remind it that neither Mr. Blaine nor his friends have as yet resorted to the circulation of infamous slanders against a rival candidate.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

Like other prophets, Bri-tow is without honor in his own country. The delegates from his own county, (Jefferson) to the Kentucky State Presidential Convention, are for Morton.—Boston Globe.

Mr. Landers announces that he will run for Governor of Indiana anyhow.

The N. Y. Times says "Considering that not one of the great appropriation bills has yet passed Congress, it must be confessed that the House is taking things in the most leisurely manner.

A Democratic Boston paper which champions Mr. Bristow, boasts that its favorite actually refuses to talk about his chances at Cincinnati." It is difficult to see what chances he has to talk about. He has never been sure of any votes outside of Kentucky, and it seems that Morton has jeopardized the delegation in Bristow's own county in that State. Votes, and not newspaper talk, will be essential to "chances" at Cincinnati.

One of Mr. Stewart's last business acts was the personal supervision of an advertisement for the newspapers. He never found he was doing as much business as he cared to do," and never committed the folly of throwing away money on "puffs and cheap jab work, reaching a few hundreds at persons who never read them. He believed in newspaper advertising, and readers by the thousand, and although enough, never reached the point of hanging himself and his great establishment as well known that advertising was unnecessary.—Lewiston Journal.

The N. Y. Times in an editorial calls attention to the fact that the despatch containing the scandalous charges against Mr. Blaine appeared simultaneously in the Washington date in the Boston Herald, Baltimore Gazette and New York Sun. The Times remarks that, "With triple presentation, nearly word for word, of one set of charges, shows that some one is interested in destroying Mr. Blaine's reputation, by extraordinary expenditure." As three of the papers named are of the most sensational and unscrupulous class, and all of them are noisy champions of Bristow, a great many people are inquiring whether that gentleman is cognizant of the dishonorable tactics of his advocates. The opinion of the Row Chances, from a Clark as to such methods of injuring a political rival would be of interest to many and no Hibernia circles just now.

The local Democratic organ very coolly proposes to subject us to a cash item concerning the private business transactions of Mr. Blaine. There are numerous and obvious reasons why we should imperatively decline to answer such questions, and among those reasons the following are specially pertinent. First that we are not Mr. Blaine's private secretary or bookkeeper, second, that his private affairs are none of our business and are usually none of the business of our contemporary, and third, that if we were fully advised of Mr. Blaine's personal business and should answer all the impertinent questions of Mr. Emery, he would either suppress the information from his readers or garble and misstate it in his characteristic manner. If any person has any complaint to make concerning our business transaction of 1875 with Mr. Blaine, such person might obtain a hearing, although the public are not interested in private affairs, but those for whom dilatorious newspapers have sought to make out some grievance for partisan effect, have invariably tackled the impudence and warmly attested their entire satisfaction with the honorable character of all Mr. Blaine's dealings with them. The Commercial will do well to take our advice and let that stunning-to-use at the head of its columns.

Republican Convention!

A VICTORY FOR BLAINE!

THE CONVENTION TWO TO ONE IN HIS FAVOR.

Instructions Omitted for Harmony's Sake

Two of the Delegates for Blaine, and the Others Uncommitted.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE WHIG & COURIER.

BOSTON, April 26. The State Convention to-day has resulted in a substantial victory for Blaine. Nearly [illegible] and delegates attended, and among them Blaine was the decided favorite by more than two to one. The Bristow minority were very active and demonstrative, but the Blaine men were conscious of their strength and kept perfectly cool. It was decided to [illegible] that in the interest of harmony it would be best to waive any formal instructions of preference but to let the question turn upon the balloting for delegates at large. Of the four chosen, Judge Hoar and Mr Forbes are for Blaine and Dana and Chadbourne are uncommitted. Dana's election was also influenced by the [illegible] excited by his rejection by the Senate. It is confidently believed that all four of the delegates will eventually support Mr Blaine at Cincinnati. In the District Convention throughout the State in which twenty two delegates are to be chosen Mr Blaine will practically sweep the field.

It has been noted all along to-day's Convention that Bristow's support was confined to a few of the cities and certain districts, while the great mass of delegates from the staunch Republican portion of the State were enthusiastically for Blaine. He can surely count on Massachusetts at Cincinnati and at [illegible] polls.

DIRIGO

[SECOND DISPATCH.]

Preliminary Proceedings

BOSTON, April 26th. The Republican State Convention met at Tremont Temple this morning. Watson W. [illegible] of Boston, Chairman of the State Committee, called [illegible] temporary Chairman.

Rev Dr [illegible] B Webb of Shawmut Congregational church, Boston, then offered prayer. He asked that in these days when so many were [illegible] that we might [illegible] and [illegible] that we might also be [illegible] putting our faith in men and [illegible] proved and that we might be [illegible].

Address of Temporary Chairman

A W Beard then congratulated the delegates that the Republican party was again in full possession of all departments of the State government, and that the spirit of reform was so strong that the best men were sought for. He hoped that they would choose representative men, men of national reputation, who were seeking the public welfare and not their own aims, and whose character [illegible] so high as to require no pledges, no instructions. He [illegible] was for the [illegible] the State should have that power and influence at Cincinnati to which its reputation entitled it.

Further Preliminaries.

The Secretaries of the State Central Committee were made temporary Secretaries. On motion of N M Jernegan of Edgartown a Committee on permanent organization was chosen; on motion of Mr [illegible] a Committee on Credentials was chosen, and on motion of Mr [illegible] of Milton, a Committee on Resolutions [illegible] On motion of [illegible] of Braintree members of the State Central Committee and Republican members of Congress were given [illegible] seats in the Convention without the right to vote.

Permanent Organization

Mr Jernegan for the Committee on Permanent Organization reported the following list of officers: President, John E Sanford of Taunton; Vice-Presidents, [illegible] Baker, [illegible] Oliver Ditson, Geo O Shattuck, Samuel [illegible] Geo B Loring, [illegible] Hosford, [illegible] Washburn, Philip L Moen, [illegible] and 19 others; Secretaries, [illegible] Merrill, [illegible] W Wilson, John S Baldwin and William Blunt.

Messrs. [illegible] Mudge, G A Churchill and [illegible] of Worcester, were appointed a committee to conduct the President to the platform. Mr Sanford was received with applause.

Remarks of President Sanford

He [illegible] it unnecessary to repeat and dwell upon the [illegible] record of the Republican party, or rather to sound its present situation to [illegible] and [illegible]. No one who has watched the current of recent political events has failed to see with spread and growing dissatisfaction with the management of national affairs and as a consequence there have been large and significant defections from our ranks. We have seen the Republican party routed in its strongholds and the National House of Representatives occupied by our opponents. It is idle to disguise the fact that there have been a period within the last few years when a national election would have brought [illegible] hazard of Democratic restoration. Have you any longer a doubt as to the causes which have wrought this change in our fortunes? Surely we have not abjured our [illegible] our distinctive policy and aims were never more clearly affirmed, our traditions and the names of our great leaders never more reverently held. No, the protest is not against the record of the creed, but against methods of administration, against dominant influences and tendencies that have debased the character and tone of the public service, against a leadership that has wielded power and patronage for its own ends and not for the public good, against a partizanship narrow, intense and violent, that has usurped the place of a broad and enlightened statesmanship and repelled accessions of recognized character and ability, as an element too repugnant to be tolerated, against a code of morality that has corrupted the standards of official honesty, and turned places of public trust into opportunities of private gain or public plunder.

Alluding to the fall of Belknap he said he would not criticise the spirit and motive that have turned a Democratic majority into a grand jury of inquest with the manifest purpose of going to the country not upon its own well doing, but upon its success in soiling Republican vestments. We claim no right of set-off because the mighty have not fallen in our high places alone. Let us not forget to thank heaven there have been found in the public service so many at whom the shafts of suspicion have not been aimed, or from whose armor of honesty they have fallen broken and harmless. There is in addition to the anxious looking for relief from the long continued depression that rests upon material interests of the country, a well founded conviction that we have enough of partizan skirmish and inefficiency, of manipulation for political effect and that it is time for a party that proposes to stand on its positive merits, for a statesmanship that undertakes to do something for the country, that is competent to deal with the evils of a currency which blunts the public conscience while it paralyzes the business of the people, to purify the civil service by selecting the fit and promoting the faithful; to rescue the public revenues from conspiracy and theft; to relieve by a sound and watchful economy the public burdens and thus, by the promise of a wise, efficient and stable policy to restore confidence to the channels of trade and industry. [illegible]

There is no magic in party names, no gratitude for past achievements, that will atone for present failures. A new generation of voters is coming on the stage. However he may be nominated the next President will not be elected by the hundreds who are active in the preliminaries of the campaign, but by the thousands who will go to the polls in November, knowing no allegiance and heeding no command save that of their own convictions. Another feature of the present canvass was indifference to professions of platforms as compared with such guarantees as are sought in the character of the candidate. Measures and not men is no longer the maxim of political wisdom. "Measures and men" is the watchword for to-day. But the most conspicuous as it is the most hopeful sign of the times is the awakened moral sense of the country in regard to public affairs. There is an instinct in human nature that approves the right and condemns the wrong. It constitutes the [illegible] of [illegible] on which popular government rests.

The Republican party will be recreant to commanding duty, may invite the penalty of deserved defeat, if it does not place itself with unhesitating courage, in the very front of the movement for reform and carry it forward with uncompromising [illegible]. The [illegible] is not to [illegible] the good old ship, but to pump out the bilge-water, [illegible] and worthy in [illegible]. There is nothing in the temper of the country however, nor in the records of the nations, to justify presumption on our part. We too, have much to be forgiven. The issue of immediate and radical reform confronts us and we cannot evade it,—we cannot afford to make no mistakes, and heaven forbid that we present to the country merely a choice of evil. Expediency and patriotic duty alike demand that our candidate stand [illegible] less in character [illegible] and purpose that we can fear no criticism and no comparison.

He closed by wishing that whatever may be the event, we take care that in the coming contest the vote of Massachusetts [illegible] for the victory of [illegible] but for the triumph of a cause.

His speech occupied 25 minutes, and was [illegible] enthusiastically applauded [illegible] during the delivery and at its close. On motion of Robert Johnson of Boston the Committee on [illegible] letter from Governor Rice [illegible] candidate for [illegible].

Lucy Stone's Husband Endorses Bristow

H B Blackwell of Boston offered resolutions in favor of [illegible] reform and the nomination of [illegible] candidate in favor of such principles and that the energy [illegible] of B H Bristow in unravelling the dark deeds of the Whisky Ring met their hearty approval.

Mr Bullock of Boston moved to refer to the Committee on Resolutions without debate.

Dr [illegible] of Boston offered [illegible] amendment that the high character of Hon. [illegible] Plan [illegible] him to the [illegible] people.

Blackwell [illegible] the resolution in spite of point of order [illegible] The [illegible] was an attempt to choke him off by noise and applause [illegible].

Mr Allen, of Boston, is a supporter of Mr Bristow [illegible] to lay the subject on the table [illegible] moved that the whole matter lie on the table.

Carried. Mr Blackwell alone objecting.

The Resolution Adopted—The Delegation to be Unpledged and Uninstructed

Mr [illegible] of Milton, for the Committee on Resolutions, reported the resolutions as follows:

Resolved, that this Convention leaves the delegates to the Republican National Convention unpledged and uninstructed to support individual candidates for President and Vice President of the United States, applause [illegible] nominate the candidates and the only whose character and career give highest guarantee to the whole country that they will be faithful and zealous to uphold the equal rights of all citizens under the constitution to bring about resumption of specie payments at a date not later than that already fixed by law and to effect thorough and radical reform of the civil service to the end that the administration of public affairs may be conducted with efficiency, economy and purity.

Carried unanimously.

Mr [illegible] of Waltham reported for Committee on Credentials [illegible] and that by reason of irregularities [illegible] of Boston, was entitled to [illegible] Report accepted.

On motion of Mr Osborne of [illegible] Belig water the Convention at 2 o'clock proceeded to ballot.

The Delegates Chosen

The result of the ballot was as follows: Whole number of votes, [illegible] necessary to a choice [illegible]; E R Hoar [illegible] R H Dana 622, J M Forbes 523, Paul A Chadbourne, 507, A H Bullock [illegible], William Claflin 376, F Learned [illegible], James Freeman Clarke 283, W B Washburn 141, J D Long 75, Thomas [illegible] and two votes others scattering.

[illegible] of Mr W [illegible] Paul A Chadbourne who received [illegible] was declared the fourth delegate.

The delegates were then [illegible] with the [illegible] of [illegible] Convention [illegible].

Claims Made by the Bristow Men

Friends of Mr Bristow consider that they have secured [illegible] of delegates [illegible] that Dana and Chadbourne are outspoken [illegible] Mr Hoar [illegible] though previously mentioned [illegible] unpledged [illegible] may be counted [illegible] Bristow man. Mr Hoar is unwilling to pledge himself but is understood to favor Blaine for first choice.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION. The next quarterly session of the S. S. Association of Dixmont, Plymouth, Jackson and Newburgh will be held at Plymouth on Tuesday, May 9th. It is desired, as it is about the time of starting the schools which were closed through the winter, that there may be a full attendance from the schools represented in the association, that they may start with the enthusiasm which the convention hopes to impart. Workers in the cause are cordially invited to attend whether members of the Association or not.

At the annual meeting of the Universalist society of Orono, at the church Tuesday evening last the following officers were chosen, viz John Libbey, Moderator, E. P. Butler, Secretary and Treasurer, Hon Charles Buffum, Col [illegible] Webster, C M Gould and S Libbey Assessors for the ensuing year. They voted unanimously that Rev J. H Weeks of Marlboro, Mass., be invited to preach next Sabbath, which invitation it is understood he will accept. Also voted unanimously to have an old fashioned good time at the town Hall the first of next week.

COMMITTEE MEETING

The Investigating Committee of the City Council met yesterday afternoon and examined the following witnesses:

Mr J [illegible] Snow testified [illegible] had something to do with the Holly project at the commencement. Had only the same interest with other citizens. Called on Mr Richard, agent of the Holly [illegible] to him the condition of affairs here. Told him it must be a clean [illegible] transaction if he got the contract to build the works. It must be well done and as cheaply as possible [illegible] make proposals accordingly. [illegible] construction [illegible] great deal of [illegible] about it. [illegible] Have no knowledge [illegible] common [illegible] Had heard about [illegible] being employed [illegible] Mr George Stetson when the bill was amended [illegible] should be so amended as to provide for proposals for materials exceeding $1000 [illegible] Mr Stetson would be no more likely to use money than [illegible].

[illegible]

Winthrop [illegible] to S H Blake to Torrey [illegible].

[illegible] Mr H D M[illegible] testified [illegible] Mr Sawyer [illegible] Mr Hudson [illegible].

[illegible] Mr Farrell [illegible] think that Mr Farrell [illegible].

[illegible] E B Blaisdell was then [illegible] testify [illegible] worked on the dam [illegible] on the East side [illegible] September when Mr Savage went there [illegible] Mr Blood [illegible] Mr Savage [illegible] the city man on that end of the dam had worked handling stones [illegible] October [illegible] asked for the time up to October [illegible] Mr Blood wished to make out his report up to that time.

Mr Savage gave me all the time as [illegible] days. He did not take it out of a book or from a paper but told it to me. [illegible] conversation with Mr Blood [illegible] Mr Richard [illegible] said there were too many men on the east side and requested me to go over and ask Messrs. Savage and Richard for the names of men whom they wanted to discharge. I heard Savage say that he had about what men he could handle. Mr Savage gave me the names of men both of whom were discharged, but he afterwards took one back because a widowed mother was depending upon him. After Mr Savage left there were two or three times when I took the time of men who were handling rocks. It did not amount in all to more than several hours. Mr Richardson told me not to measure stone brought there by Morrill, until I had orders from him because he could not rely upon Morrill's placing them where they were wanted unless he was watching him. I knew of the trouble existing between Richardson and Savage and saw Savage cut the scow adrift. I remember that a man came to the dam and threw stones on the timbers and Mr Farrell made him go go back and throw them into the checks. J C White Esq and Rev S P Fay recommended my services to the Water Board.

Wm. Savage was called and denied Heskell's statement that the time was given for all of September up to October. He thought first four weeks of handling stones was down in a book, but he did not have it with him when the time was called for. He admitted that he cut the scow adrift for the reasons given in his previous testimony. Mr. Richardson never sent over orders to discharge men. He did discharge one man and then take him back.

F. A. Wilson, Esq., was called upon to explain how the Water Board were appointed. He stated that he was a member of the Legislature when the Water Bill was before that body; but previously had been in Milwaukee, where water works were being put in. While there a prominent gentleman told him that it would not do to allow the city government to appoint the Board, for they would surely fail to appoint a good one. When the Bill was before the Legislature Messrs Palmer and Wheelwright met with him and they decided in the first place to appoint men of integrity, and the next consideration was that the Board should be made up of one Republican, one Democrat, and an engineer. With these two points in view Messrs. Geo Stetson, Gorham L Boynton and Luther Eaton were appointed. Gen Boynton afterwards resigned and W F Pearson, Esq., was appointed in his place by the City Council. He considered him a suitable and competent man for the position. He then proceeded to say [illegible] consider this investigation injurious, as it will give capitalists abroad a wrong impression of our water power, and will render them suspicious of the stability of the dam. I think it has already cost the city one hundred thousand dollars. I had confidence in the Water Board when they were appointed and I still have in their competency. This investigation is very injudicious [illegible] cruel wrong, and unjust, and I do not blame the gentlemen of the Water Board for having so much feeling about the matter.

The Committee adjourned until Friday afternoon.

ATTENTION has been called to the fact that inasmuch as salts of Hypophosphites are more readily absorbed by the system they are better indicated as auxiliaries with which to improve the Blood, and generally to cure wasting diseases, than all other preparations from Phosphorus.

And since Phosphorus enters so largely into the animal economy it becomes par excellence the best vehicle with which to associate the other vitalizing ingredients of healthy blood, nerve and muscle.

In Fellows' Syrup of Hypophosphites are combined all the substances found necessary to insure robust health, and, whereas, it was invented with a view to supply every deficiency, it certainly has performed some wonderful cures. d&w apr20

DR. SCHENCK'S STANDARD REMEDIES. The standard remedies for all diseases of the lungs are SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, SCHENCK'S SEA WEED TONIC and SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS, and if taken before the lungs are destroyed, a speedy cure is effected.

[illegible] the medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck of Philadelphia owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of pulmonary diseases.

The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter in the lungs; nature throws it off by an easy expectoration, for when the phlegm or matter is ripe a slight cough will throw it off, the patient has rest and the lungs begin to heal.

To enable the Pulmonic Syrup to do this, Schenck's Mandrake Pills and Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic must be freely used to cleanse the stomach and liver. Schenck's Mandrake Pills act on the liver, removing all obstructions, relax the gall bladder, the bile starts freely and the liver is soon relieved.

Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic is a gentle stimulant and alterative; the alkali of which it is composed mixes with the food and prevents souring. It assists the digestion by toning up the stomach to a healthy condition, so that the food and the Pulmonic Syrup will make good blood; then the lungs heal, and the patient will surely get well if care is taken to prevent fresh cold.

All who wish to consult Dr. Schenck, either personally or by letter can do so at his principal office, corner of SIXTH and ARCH STS., Philadelphia, every Monday. Schenck's medicines sold by all druggists throughout the country.
